B. Search and Seizure of Electronically Stored Information

The items to be seized from the Subject Premises also include any computer devices, cellphones, and storage media that may contain any electronically stored information falling within the categories set forth in Section I.A of this Attachment above, including desktop and laptop computers, disk drives, modems, thumb drives, personal digital assistants, smart phones, digital cameras, and scanners. The items to be seized from the Subject Premises also include:

1. Any items or records needed to access the data stored on any seized or copied computer devices, cellphones, or storage media, including any physical keys, encryption devices, or records of login credentials, passwords, private encryption keys, or similar information.

3. Any evidence concerning the identities or locations of those persons with access to, control over, or ownership of the seized or copied computer devices, cellphones, or storage media.

C. Review of ESI

Following seizure of any computer devices, cellphones, and storage media and/or the creation of forensic image copies, law enforcement personnel (who may include, in addition to law enforcement officers and agents, attorneys for the government, attorney support staff, agency personnel assisting the government in this investigation, and outside technical experts under government control) are authorized to review the ESI contained therein for information responsive to the warrant that was created, modified, accessed, sent, received, and/or deleted between on or about January 1, 2014 and the date of the execution of the search warrant.

In conducting this review, law enforcement personnel may use various techniques to locate information responsive to the warrant, including, for example:

- surveying various file “directories” and the individual files they contain (analogous to looking at the outside of a file cabinet for the markings it contains and opening a drawer believed to contain pertinent files);
- opening or cursorily reading the first few “pages” of such files in order to determine their precise contents;
- scanning storage areas to discover and possibly recover recently deleted files or deliberately hidden files;
- performing key word searches through all electronic storage areas to determine whether occurrences of language contained in such storage areas exist that are intimately related to the subject matter of the investigation; and
- reviewing metadata, system information, configuration files, registry data, and any other information reflecting how, when, and by whom the device was used.

Law enforcement personnel will make reasonable efforts to search only for files, documents, or other electronically stored information within the categories identified in Sections I.A and I.B of this Attachment. However, law enforcement personnel are authorized to conduct a complete review of all the ESI from seized devices or storage media if necessary to evaluate its contents and to locate all data responsive to the warrant.
